

The 12 Days of Christmas
Courtney Cash

On the first day of Christmas, four fairies faintly flew from Fiji for a feast.

On the second day of Christmas, Santa slept so slowly and was sound asleep.

On the third day of Christmas, three thirsty things drank a throthy drink.

On the fourth day of Christmas, fifty frosty fire fighters fought the fire far away.

On the fifth day of Christmas, four falling ferrets fell from San Francisco.

On the sixth day of Christmas, seven slithering snakes sizzled south to see the show.

On the seventh day of Christmas, sixteen swimmers swam softly through the swift sea.

On the eighth day of Christmas, eighty eaters ate a bundle of apples and apricots.

On the ninth day of Christmas, nine naughty ninjas never knew New York nested in the world.

On the tenth day of Christmas, ten teachers taught taunted kids how to tumble.

On the eleventh day of Christmas, elephants elegantly found elves eating eggs.

On the twelfth day of Christmas, twelve tulips twirled in the twisted wind.
